

Nursing History Research Unit, Sydney Nursing School, University of Sydney

1990? –

Other Names: • NHRU

Details

The Nursing History Research Unit, Sydney Nursing School at the University of Sydney is a group of researchers into the history of nursing and nurse education in Australia. The Unit supports a research archive that contains a range of reports and documents relevant to nursing history and the history of the education of nurses. The collection consists of papers relevant to the various departments of nursing, midwifery and health science that have been operated by the University of Sydney and private collections. The Nursing History Research Unit also holds The Home of Hope registers 1903-1905. The Nursing History Research Unit is open on Tuesdays and access can be arranged at other times.

More info

Related Entries

Related Organisations

- Home of Hope for Friendless and Fallen Women \(1883 - 1904\)
- Sydney Rescue Work Society \(1890 - 1982\)

The Nursing History Research Unit holds registers from the Home of Hope that were created by the Home's operator, the Sydney Rescue Work Society, from 1903 until 1905.

- South Sydney Women's Hospital \(1905 - 1976\)

Records

Records held by this organisation

- Home of Hope for Friendless and Fallen Women \(South Sydney Women's Hospital\) Admissions Register \(1903 - 1905\)

You can view this page online by visiting <https://findconnect.efront.digital/entity/nursing-history-research-unit-sydney-nursing-school/>