

Law Officers' Establishment, Colony of Tasmania

1823 – 1856

Details

The Law Officers' Establishment, set up in 1823, was a loose term to describe the organisation that contained the Supreme Court and the Sheriff's Department, which after the early 1830s, included gaols, which housed children. In 1856, following self-government, the Law Officer's Establishment became the Office of the Attorney-General, one of the first three ministerial portfolios.

The Supreme Court Registry recorded, among other things, births, deaths, and marriages.

More info

Chronology

- Law Officers' Establishment, Colony of Tasmania (1823 – 1856)
 - Attorney General's Department, Colony of Tasmania (1856 - 1901)

Related Entries

Ran

- Launceston Gaol \(1827 - 1917\)

Related Organisations

- Sherriff and Gaols Department, Colony of Tasmania \(1824 - 1901\)

You can view this page online by visiting <https://findconnect.efront.digital/entity/law-officers-establishment/>