

Northern Territory Native Industrial Mission

1899 – 1903

Other Names:

- Kaparlgoo
- Kapalga

Details

The Northern Territory Native Industrial Mission was established in 1899 at Kaparlgoo on the South Alligator River in Western Arnhem Land. It was founded while the Northern Territory was administered by the South Australian Government and was supported by an Adelaide Church of England parish, St Luke's, Whitmore Square. Although records show definite intentions to build children's dormitories at the Mission, various difficulties forced the Mission to be abandoned in 1903.
